DIETZ FOUND GUILTY

JURY CONVICTS HIM OF MURDER IN THE SECOND DEGREE.

MUST GO TO THE PENITENTIARY

THE PENALTY IS FROM TEN TO TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

Lindsay's Slayer Loses His Stolcism and Weeps as the Jurors Leave the Courtroom to Deliberate Upon Their Verdict.

William Dietz, the young officer of the reserve army of Germany, is now under conviction for murder in the second degree. Exactly at 5:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon the twelve jurors, who have sat and patiently absorbed the mass of testimony which has been given during the long and tedious trial, arose from their seats in the jury box and departed from the court room to deliberate upon the future of young Dietz. When Judge Alden instructed the bailiff to escort the jury to their room to deliberate upon their verdict, Dietz broke down and wept aloud. It was the first time during the entire proceedings that he showed any emotion.

The scene was rather pathetic and while the majority of the hundreds of spectators who filled the court room to its fullest capacity were in sympathy with the Lind-say family yet several ventured forward and offered a few words of condolence to the weeping defendant. Dietz is practically alone in his struggle for life, the only persons whom he could class as his friends being Mr. and Mrs. Judge Gray. They have stuck by him, however, from the very being Mr. and Mrs. Judge Gray. They have stuck by him, however, from the very day of the shooting.

All of yesterday was devoted to arguments. The opening argument was made by Attorney J. A. Hale for the state. He made a very strong plea to the jury and asked that the defendant be found guilty of murder in the first degree, which he thought would be justified by the evidence. He went over all of the testimony of the defense and endeavored to pick it to pieces, but did not accomplish much in this direction. He talked for more than an hour.

Attorney Ben S. Henderson then made the argument to the jury for the defendant, Henderson occupied more time than Mr. Hale, but none of it was wasted. He sifted the evidence before the jury and showed up his side of the case to an advantage. The jurors paid marked attention to all the arguments. County Attorney Miller closed for the state. He devoted much of his time in picturing out the shadow of sorrow which had been cast over the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay by the killing of their son, Russell. He was very eloquent at times. At the close of his argument he went over some of the evidence in view of convincing the jury that the defendant was he concluded the jury retired to the jury room.

"Those men are thieves." said the chief The men boarded a green car bound for the depot. Hayes and Lowe went on the same car. At the depot the men were placed under arrest at the chief's order, and taken to the St. Louis avenue police station. They gave the names of Frank Quirk. George Anderson, James Walker and Pat Griffin. They are just from lowa, where they have been working the state fairs, and came to Kansas City to pick up a few spare dollars during Carnival week.

After the men had been locked up Chief Hayes met William Pinkerton, who is in the city on business connected with the local Pinkerton agency, and the latter had a look at the men. He identified them all as expert thieves and men of some reputation in their line.

CONVENTION HALL AFFAIRS.

No Aid Can Be Expected From the Railroads and Hustling Will Be Necessary.

Secretary Clendening, of the Commercial Club, yesterday received the following com-munication from John T. Blake: "I desire to add my subscription to the convention hall fund. I have been sick for about two to add my subscription to the convention hall fund. I have been sick for about two months and rarely come into the city. I therefore authorize you to sign my name to the list for $50. I have always thought that this scheme would be a good investment for Kansas City, but think the amount asked for is too small. We should have at least $300,000, and the railroads should subscribe at least $75,000."

Several members of the general committee having in charge the convention hall movement went to the Union depot yesterday afternoon and met President E. P. Ripley, of the Santa Fe, who passed through en route to Topeka, to attend the silver anniversary exercises in honor of the road. President Ripley said to the committee that all of the lines entering the Union depot had considered the matter of a subscription to the convention hall fund and all had decided it would be impolitic to make any subscriptions whatever to the fund, as the precedent thus established would enable all the citles along their lines to ask for similar subscriptions, which the railroads, having granted them to Kansas City, would not be in position to refuse.

Mr. Ripley talked to the committeemen only ten minutes, but in that brief time talked to the point and destroyed the last vestige of hope of securing ald from the railroads for the convention hall. The additional $30,000 required to buy the site and build the hall will have to be subscribed by Kansas Cityans.

ROUSING RECEPTION TO MISS EDNA WHITNEY.

Rejected Maid of Honor Royally Greeted as Queen Lorena in Kansas City, Kas.-Parade. Speeches and Lots of Curiosity.

Miss Edna Whitney, of Chillicothe, Mo., the young woman whose occupation was regarded as a bar to her participation in the contest for maid of honor to the queen of the Kansas City Flower parade, was given an enthusiastic and exaggerated welcome by Kansas City, Kas., yesterday. Miss Whitney has been elected the Queen Lorena of the Topeka carnival, and she was on her way to enter upon her royal duties, stopping over for three hours by invitation as the guest of Kansas City

The demonstration at the Union denot to this city and along the line of march was a peculiar one. Men and women fought for places from which to view the newest peroine of an old mistake. It was a chilly day for spike-tail coats and leaders of the german. It was an apotheosis of the apron. If there had been more sincerity in it all, it would have been a scene more French than representatively American. But as 6 was, there was nothing at all alarming t the student of social economy in the avar icious resentment of a magnified affrontthe slopping over of a lot of politicians. The trouble was, it was overdone. There vas something out of tune and out of People with good solid "horse did not regard it as dignified, and doubtful if, after sober second thought, Miss Whitney has increased the good opinion is "worth a whole theater ful of others." Miss Whitney was welcomed at the Union depot in this city by a delegation of Kansas City, Kas., officials and a number of women, who got a carriage ride at the expense of the jointists, they having been the chief subscribers to the fund. The officials included Mayor Marshman, city officers, police commissioners and members of the council. The First Regiment band, of the Kansas National guard, furnished music for the occasion. A crowd of 300 or 400 people had gathered at the depot, at tracted as much by curiosity as by sympathy, though there was no lack of the latter. The people wanted to see what sort of woman this was over whom the whole state of Kansas and the Industrial Council of this city are raving, who has been hoisted in a day by a little telegram of ten words from the obscurity of an humble but respectable avocation into a celebrity not confined to two states.

depot at 10:40 o'clock beheld a tall and almost perfectly proportioned young woman, attired in a neat traveling costume of bine and wearing a natty black walking hat with white veit. Her face is strong, regular and pleasing, but not at all beautiful. Her bearing was as easy and natural as was to be expected under the rather embarrassing circumstances. She is dashing rather than pretty, and under the enchantment of a little distance she would be called handsome.

"Why, I thought she was pretty," exclaimed a woman in a red striped shirt waist. And she echeed the sentiments of the crowd about her.

waist. And she echoed the sentiments of the crowd about her.

"There are others," sententiously remarked a young man with solled hands, but who did not appear to be rabidly resentful against the plutocrats.

"She aln't pretty at all," remarked a disappointed fat woman to whom jealousy is the last motive that could be ascribed.

"She can take care of herself, though," said a clerk in shirt sleeves.

Miss Whitney was thoroughly enjoying herself, though there is apparently no danger of her head being turned, for she looks entirely able to take care of herself and her eye is open to the main chance. There is a mortgage on the old farm.

Miss Whitney has dark eyes of a blue turn and her hair is almost black. Her carriage is erect and full of self-assertiveness, and if there is little trace of the social parvenu in her bearing there is at least no difficient.

The banners carried in the parade were quite a feature thereof. Every one was a Fitzsimmons punch at snobbery and landed on the solar plexus of everybody too stuck up to acknowledge that a factory girl wasn't every bit as good as anybody else. Here are some of the mottoes inscribed on the banners;

Honest Toil Beats Norman Blood-in

The Rejected Stone in Missouri Is the Head of the Corner—in Kansas,

True Hearts Are More Than Coronets
—in Kansas.

Sweet Are the Uses of Adversity-in Kansas.

No Royal Road to Honor-in Kansas.

Miss Whitney Honors Labor-Kansas Honors Her.

1001016 Her.

Learn to Labor and to Walt-for Kansas,

All along the triumphal march through the West bottoms the sidewalks were lined with curious spectators anxious to get a glimpse of Miss Whitney. Every window had its occupant, and every "laden son and daughter of honest toil" in all that neck of the woods paid his and her tribute to the city's guest.

A very pretty incident occurred as the procession passed the Armour packing house. The big whistie suddenly sounded three times in honor of Miss Whitney, and every window in the great plant was occupied by as many grimy workmen as could see. The company gave the men time to view the parade, and Superintendent Tourtellot himself looked out of a window nearly half a mile from his office.

The procession passed through the streets of Kansas City, Kas., without special incident and finally drew up at the Allmon house, where, before lunchen, a public reception was held in Miss Whitney's honor.

Miss Whitney was escorted to luncheon by Mayor Marshman, while her mother went in on the arm of C. K. Holliday, Jr. Mayor Marshman presided at the informal luncheon. Judge S. S. King delivered a grandiloquent and florescent panegyric on Miss Whitney, giving her a little sensible advice at the same time.

"We have no queens in this land," said he, "and your reign is but for a day. Do not allow your head to be turned by the homage you receive. We honor honest toil in your person to-day and are proud to make the stone rejected in Missouri the head of the corner in Kansas."

Mrs. John A. Hale informally responded to the sentiment: "Kansas honors woman and honest toil."

At the close of the luncheon Miss Whitney, who did not make any response to all the gush that was indulged in, was escorted to the depot by the reception committee, which escorted her to Topeka. She pleasantly excused herself to newspaper men and declined to be interviewed further than to say that she appreciated the honor confered upon her and had made no plans for the future.

Miss Whitney was accompanied from Chillicothe by her mother, her sister, Miss Mabel Whitney, and Miss Edith Cheney, and by Mr. John C. Waters, one of the reception committee from Topeka. Mr. C. K. Holliday, Jr., and Dr. G. P. Ashton, of Topeka, the other two members of the committee, remained in Kansas City, while Mr. Waters went on to Chillicothe. The trip to Kansas City was without incident, until Cameron Junction was reached. Here a crowd of 3,000 or 4,000 people had gathered with a brass band and gave her a hearty welcome.

Republican primaries were held in the various wards of the city and townships of the county yesterday afternoon and evening, to elect delegates to a county convention that will be held Thursday. In the city the result was an even break, Charles Miller crarying the First and Second wards, George Holybee the Third and Sixth and John Volse the Fourth and Fifth, giving each man twenty instructed delegates. Two townships have been heard from, Delaware going for Miller and Kiekapoo for Volse. The best of order prevailed at the primaries and Democrats and repeaters were not allowed to vote or interfere. In some of the wards the vote was heavy, but the best of feeling prevailed and no bitterness was shown, such as distinguished the recent Democratic contest. None of the candidates having a clear majority, the contest in the convention promises to be interesting. George Gruss Plends Guilty. George Gruss came into the district court yesterday afternoon and plead guilty to manslaughter in the fourth degree in answer to the charge of killing Patrick Kildare in a Pike joint a year ago. This action on the part of Gruss saves the county long and expensive litigation. He was tried once before on this charge, when the jury brought in a verdict which was afterwards set aside.

It is likely that Gruss will get a jail sentence of about a year. He has been in jail about a year already. Veteran Kildare was killed in a row in Gruss' saloon over paying for a glass of beer. He was knocked down with a beer glass and his skull crushed. Afterwards his body was placed on the railroad track to be run over to give the impression that he had been killed by the cars.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 28.—Late this afternoon a telegram was received from Masterin-Chancery Cornish, now in New York, fixing November I as the date for the sale of the Union Pacific.

Special Trains From Topeka. All the members of the Kansas City Passenger Association have arranged to go in a body to Topeka to-day to attend the ex-ercises in celebration of the silver anniversary of the opening of the Santa Fe rail-way through the state of Kansas. The Santa Fe yesterday announced that in ad-dition to its special service to Topeka, which enables passengers from Kansas City and intermediate points to reach that city in time to witness the morning parades, a special service out of Topcka to Kansas City will be established, leaving Topcka at 19:30 p. m., after the close of festivities, these trains to run to-night, to-movrow night and Friday night.

Last of the Low Rate Ticke

The low rates of $4 to St. Louis and $7 to Chicago, which were originally announced to apply on each Tuesday and Thursday until October 21, and later to expire October 4, will be withdrawn to-morrow. As rext Tuesday is October 5, one day succeeding the date of the announced withdrawal of the rates, to-morrow will be the last day of sale. The date of October 4, which in this instance is absolutely meaningless, was selected to admit of the necessary ten days' notification to the interstate commerce commission of the Withdrawal of the low rates. The low rates of $4 to St. Louis and $7 to Texas Port May Be Closed. Lines reaching Galveston via Houston from this territory were advised yesterday that quarantine regulations had been adopted at Galveston against Houston, but their information was not definite as to whether the regulations are absolutely prohibitive of all traffic to or through Galveston via Houston. If this is the case export business via Galveston will be practically suspended. The Illinois Central announced yesterday that business from this territory for New Orleans will be accepted at the railroad company's risk of prompt delivery.

Ask How It Happened.

Topeka, Kas., Sept. 28.—(Special.) The City Roller mills of Emporia has written to the state board of railroad commissioners asking how it happens that the Santa Fe railroad ships flour from Topeka to Emporia for 4 cents per 100 pounds, when the regular schedule of rates is much higher. The Emporia millers ask to have the discrimination removed.

Railroad Notes. Passenger rates for the round trip between St. Paul and Chicago were cut to $11.50 yesterday, as a result of trouble over carrying the Twin City delegations to the Northwestern underwriters' meeting at Chicago.

The net earnings of the Santa Fe system for the month of August were $921,281, an increase of $169,325 over the same month of last year. For the two months of the fiscal year to August 31, the net earnings have been $1,386,038, an increase of $30,185. The total income from operation for the two months shows an increase of $152,579.

The Rock Island was yesterday moving its freight and passenger offices from its old quarters to the building at 900 Main street. The ticket case will not be put in the new office until to-morrow, but the freight department is already doing business there, and the passenger office is dividing its force between the new and old offices.

LOOKING FOR A LOST GRAVE.

CHIEF BLUEJACKET COMES BACK AFTER TWENTY-TWO YEARS.

Recognizes the Landmarks at Prophet Town, but Says the Old Prophet Is Buried Elsewhere.

"I do not know where I am," said Chief Charles Bluejacket, of the Shawnees, rubbing his hand across his forehead as he sat in a buggy on the site of the old Prophet Town, one mile south and onequarter mile west of Second street and Metropolitan avenue, Argentine, yesterday morning. "These are not the old trees," he continued as he looked about for a familiar landmark; "these are a younger growth; the old trees are gone. It is mighty hard for me to realize that this is Prophet Town, but it is," he added, after a moment's survey of the topography.

"Gentlemen, you are mistaken; this is old Prophet Town-and the latest Prophet Town; this is where the prophet settled when he came to this county, and this is where his sons and daughters, prophets who succeeded him, lived after the old man's death; but this is not the site of the Prophet Town where Tensquatawa

"What do you call him?" asked several members of the Wyandotte County Historical Society. The Historical Society has called the prophet "Lanlewasikaw". Blue-jacket spelled the word "Tensquatawa", and Secretary F. G. Adams, of the Kansas State Historical Society, was delighted, He had recently discovered a letter written by Dr. J. A. Chute, of Westport, to Rev. Mr. Isaac McCoy, in 1837, in which the prophet was referred to as Tensquatawa. Bluejacket came to Wyandotte county in 1832, when hardly 16 years of age. He is how 80 years old. He arrived from the Indian Territory Monday, as told yester-day. "The prophet lived right over here when I came to this country." he said, pointing to the east slope of the hill on the old site of Prophet Town, "but before he died he moved over toward the Kansas river." called the prophet "Lanlewasikaw". river."

Bluejacket described the location of the Bluejacket described the location of the town in which he says the prophet died. The site is near the school house in what is now known as Gibbs & Payne's addition to Argentine, about one-half mile west of the city hall. The old Indian chief was too tired to go there yesterday, but said he would remain here for several days and would visit the scene of the prophet's death and endeavor to locate his grave. Bluejacket was yesterday the guest of the Wyandotte County Historical Society. He went where its members directed, and the society had fixed on old Prophet Town as the resting place of the prophet. Old Prophet Town was located on the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 22, township II, range 25 cast. The land is now owned by N. Jackels, who bought it from John Mateney, an old-time friend of Bluejacket and in whose buggy Bluejacket rode to the old townsite.

and in whose buggy Biuejacket rode to the old townsite.

It consists of a hill sloping in three directions, to the north and northwest, south and southeast and east. At the base of the north slope of the hill is a spring, known as the rock spring, and this spring figured largely in causing the Historical Society to locate the prophet's burial place at this site. Bluejacket, in a recent letter, said the prophet was buried near the big rock spring. It seems, however, he considered the spring at the old townsite as little rock spring, but his reference to the rock spring, but his reference to the rock spring has tended to confirm the opinion of the members of the Historical Society that old Prophet Town was the place indicated. It was exactly 10 o'clock yesterday morning when Bluejacket arrived at the Fifth Avenue hotel, Argentine, from which the start for Prophet Town was made. He had ridden over from the Allmon house in Kansas City, Kas., with John Mateney, one of the earliest settlers of Wyandotte county, and for more than twenty years a neighbor of Bluejacket. Bluejacket stepped from the buggy at Argentine as carelessiy as would a young man of 20.

"Hello, there, I know you," were his first words. They were addressed to Thomas Arch, with whom he shook hands. "You dug a well for me: that was twenty-five years ago. And there's George Brown." Bluejacket continued, as he gazed intentiy words. They were addressed to Thomas Arch, with whom he shook hands. "You dug a well for me: that was twenty-five years ago. And there's George Brown." Bluejacket continued, as he gazed intentiy at an old man standing near. It was George W. Brown, whom he had not seen for twenty-three years. Dr. Earle and others were greeted in the same way. It was only the younger faces that Bluejacket did not remember. He was much interested in the "live generations of Grinters." which Mrs. Moses Grinter proudly introduced. The generations consisted of Mrs. Anna Grinter, born in 1820—the Historical Society records say, erroneously, 1818—who came to Wyandotte county in 1835. She was then Anna Marshall, but shortly afterward married Moses Grinter, Her daughter, Kate Grinter, was born in 1838; her granddaughter, now Mrs. Mary Mooney, in 1851; her great-granddaughter, Ora E. Mooney Sweasey, in 1877, and Anna Sweasey, representing the fifth generation, three months ago.

A number of old-timers gathered on the south side of the Fifth Avenue hotel for a group photograph. There were present: J. S. and Mrs. Chick, V. J. Lane, Colonel Ed Haren, secretary of the Wyandotte Historical Society; W. J. Anderson and Mrs. Anderson, who was a daughter of Thomas Johnson, the missionary who came to Wyandotte county in 1828; A. N. Moyer, John R. Mateney, W. H. Toothaker, James F. Timmons, Dr. G. W. Parsons, Charles Lovelace, George D. Fearey, secretary of the Kansas State Historical Society; E. F. Heisler, G. W. Brown, Thomas J. Barker, Frank H. Betton, Joseph Landrey, Henry Parsons, Alex McDowell, William McGeorge, H. Lisenbee, R. T. Mooney.

"How is your daughter Sally?" was one of the many question asked of Bluejacket by these old-timers. He told them three sons and one daughter were married and many more things concerning personal and family affairs before the start was made to Prophet Town. Perhaps 300 people had gathered at the hotel and probably 200 of them followed Bluejacket to the old Indian townsite.

GIVES STRENGTH TO MEN.

FREE TO ALL WHO ARE WEAK AND WORN.

A METHOD TO CURE AND INCREASE THE POWER.

It is a remarkable fact that a man never appreciates the sufferings of others until he himself has passed through the fire of pain or remorse. Then it is that he looks pain or remorse. Then it is that he learound for those who are suffering; wants them to profit by his experience gives his time and money gladly for benefit of others and never tires of his zeal. There are plenty of men weak and worn out, struggling with remorse and fear, the natural outcome of habits that brought incapacity; a sense of lonesomeness and a feeling as if the best side of life had been banished forever. Such men should write to Thomas Slater, box 554, Kalamazoo, Mich. He will send free by mail, in a plain, sealed envelope full particulars about the method he used, and this will enable any man to get a complete cure at home. It is the method that Mr. Slater used to cure himself of the troubles that sap the strength and vigor and also enlarged his organs to natural size. The cure was so complete, so satisfying and such a wonderful change from his former condition that he will gladly tell others all about it, sending all particulars. He figures that he doesn't know of a better way to show his appreciation of his own cure and the sufferings of others. There must be generous men in this world to offset the tide of avarice. Write to Mr. Slater—it will cost nothing for his description and method.

of the Shawnee Sun or Moon, the "Siwinowe Kesibwi," kesibwi meaning either sun or moon in the Shawnee language, pubished in November, 1811, at the old Haptist mission about a mile south of Prophet Town, in Johnson county. It was printed in the Shawnee language. Bluejacket interpreted several paragraphs, the first readins, as he interpreted it:

"My Shawnee friends, it has been a good while since the Sun or Moon has shown its light. It might be beneficial to you to receive the Sun or Moon again."

Another paragraph said: "Shawnees a good while ago were a numerous people;
they are decreasing: they have become weak because they have departed from the Great Spirit."

This reference to the departure from the Great Spirit evidently had reference to the following of the prophet and his sons and daughter, Catherine, who succeeded him as prophets, Tensquatawa, the prophet, was one of triplets, born in Ohlo, in 1588. He was a brother of Tecumseh, the chief of Tippecanoe fame, the third brother. Vinn, never attaining much note. In 1896 Tensquatawa became a prophet.

He predicted the eclipse of the sun in that year several months before it occurred, and the Indians were afterwards willing to regard him as the earthly agent of the Great Spirit. He exercised his power with great effect, endeavoring to form a confederation of all Indian tribes in a war against the United States. William Henry Harrison, then governor of Indiana, in 1811, having learned of the plans of the prophet and his brother. Tecumseh, marched against them, and the famous battle of Tippecanoe, November 7 of that year, marked the death
knell of the prophet's power.

He had told his followers the guns of the Americans would prove unavailing; that the buillets would fall harmless at the feet of the Indians, and that the Great Spirit would guide them to a triumphant victory.

Spirit would guide them to a triumphant victory.

Several years after the battle, with a few remaining followers, he came to Cape Girardeau, Mo., in 1828, and to Wyandotte county, Kas. in 1828. He never regained his lost prestige with any considerable following and died a broken-hearted man in November, 1837. The Wyandotte County Historical Society will erect a monument over his grave if it is located.

Must be possessed in no ordinary degree by those who bear the pangs of rheumatism without complaint. We have never heard of such an individual. But why not, ere the lifelong martyrdom begins, extinguish the germ of this atrocious malady with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the efficacy of which as a preventive of the disease, as well as a means of relieving it, is well established and amply attested, during the last forty-five years, over professional signatures? It expurgates from the blood those acrid principles which beget the pain and inflammation characteristic of this complaint, which, it should be recollected, is always hable to terminate life suddenly when it attacks a vital part. The Bitters also expels the virus of malaria from the system, remedies dyspepsia, kidney complaint, constipation and billousness, quiets the nerves, and invigorates the whole physical organism.

Still Kept in Suspense Charles Carroll and Andrew Sollen, two street preachers who were arrested Saturday for blockading the streets at Eleventh and Main streets, were tried in police court yesterday. After hearing the evidence, Judge Gifford informed Carroll and Sollen they would have to discontinue their practice of preaching in the streets to the annoyance of the merchants or he would have to send them to the workhouse. He told them he would confer with Chief Hayes about their case and make his decision today. He ordered the men to be in police court to-day.
